

BUILD BUNGALOW STUDIO IN TULSA

Harry J. Spindler Authorized Announcement of Importance

MEANS MUCH TO CITY

Plans Call for Finest Building of Its Kind in Entire Southwest

Construction of a bungalow studio for the Tulsa Institute of Music and Fine Arts, which will be the finest building of its kind in the southwest, was announced Saturday by Harry J. Spindler, one of the most prominent musicians and instructors in music in the city. Architects are already engaged in drawing plans for the building, and construction will probably be started some time this fall. The location will be somewhere in the south part of the city. This bungalow studio will consummate an ambition that Spindler has been cherishing for years, or ever since he established here the Tulsa Institute of Music and Fine Arts about nine years ago, with which he has made a phenomenal success. Its establishment means that Tulsa boys and girls may acquire here a real conservatory education in music without being put to the necessity of being sent to the larger cities to secure the finishing touches to a musical training.

One important feature of the studio is that the rooms will be so arranged that they may be thrown all together, making one large concert room seating from three to four hundred people. This will enable Spindler to furnish Tulsa music lovers with invitation concerts where they may be local and visit the temporary facility located on South Main street.

Special attention will be paid to acoustics which plays an important part in a building of this character. The building will enable Spindler to make a showing of his collection of American art works, said to be the most extensive of any similar collection in the city. This includes 20 oil paintings by famous artists, such as White, Couss, Ochtman, Gruppe, Brunetti, Wiggins and others. He himself is an artist who makes the painting of cloud studies his favorite work along that line. Many of these paintings now adorn the walls of the institute, temporarily located on South Main street.

Spindler was a pupil of Itasca Josselyn, one of the world's greatest pianists, and is recognized as one of the state's most prominent musical instructors.

LECTURE ON REINCARNATION

Irving S. Cooper Will Address Tulsa Upon Interesting Subject. Irving S. Cooper of Los Angeles, Cal., a prominent lecturer of the Theosophical society, who has recently returned from a lecture tour in Europe and Australia, will talk to Tulsans on the subject of "Reincarnation, the Hope of the World," Sunday, September 24, at 3 p. m. in the auditorium of the city hall. This lecture is free. Public is cordially invited.

The theory of reincarnation asserts the existence of a living and individualized principle which dwells in and informs the body of a man, and which, on the death of the body, passes into another body, after a longer or shorter interval. Thus successive bodily lives are linked together like pearls strung upon a thread, the thread being the living principle, the pearls upon it the separate human lives.

Gets Quick Results

Enid Man Tells What Inter-State Doctors Did for Him.

The Inter-State Doctors have published many letters from satisfied and well-known people who have been cured by them.

Mr. Ellis Harris of Enid writes as follows:

222 W. Oklahoma St., Enid, Okla., Aug. 29, 1921. "I had been ill for a long time. Had been suffering from bladder and kidney trouble. I had doctors with a number of physicians, but did not get any practical relief. After one of my friends had been treated by the Inter-State Doctors and found immediate relief, I determined to call on them. On August 8 I called on the Inter-State Doctors and was examined by them. Since beginning my treatment I have obtained greater results than I had by all former treatments, although I have been treated only two weeks."

"Ellis Harris."

Many cases of lung trouble, nervous diseases, Bright's disease, dropsy, asthma, etc., have been successfully treated by the Inter-State Doctors. This has been attested to by the patients themselves, as the readers of these columns well know.

The Inter-State Doctors have made a special study of intravenous (direct to the blood) methods. They combine with other forces of nature all the known serums and bacterins. They are prepared to give the French 914 to a limited number of cases. This they guarantee to be genuine.

Not the least of their success is due to their facilities for examination and correct diagnosis. Thousands of men have been relieved from the embarrassment of some hidden disease. Many hopeless mothers have escaped the surgeon's knife through their method of treatment.

Some have been cured in one of treatment (such as varicose and other enlargements). The Tulsa offices are at suite 218-219 Security Bldg., corner Second and Main. Office hours are 9-5, evenings 7-8, Sundays 10-12 only.—Advertisement.

FOR VALIDATION OF PAVING ACT

Attorney-General Asks High Court to Rule Law as Valid

By the Associated Press Staff Wire. OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 23.—Bringing up again the fight for the validity of the state law permitting the issuance of bonds for paving by incorporated towns and cities of more than a thousand inhabitants, declared invalid by the state supreme court, the attorney-general filed today with court a brief contending that the case should be reheard and the law declared valid. The law was passed by the state legislature in 1919.

It was brought into question in the supreme court when that body upheld a decision of a district court which declared an issue of bonds made by the town of Muskell under that provision was invalid.

In the brief filed today the attorney-general said that since bonds issued under the 1919 law were held in great amounts by state banks, and that those held by state banks passed to the state guaranty fund when those banks failed, the declaration that the law is invalid works a grave injury to the state guaranty fund. He cited the instance of the failed Bank of Commerce of Oklahoma, which held his bonds in the sum of $37,000, he said.

The attorney-general based his contention that the law should be declared valid on argument that any law which it is itself original, definitely grants a certain right, and which is not in conflict with other laws of the constitution is valid, and that the bond law in question meets those points.

The decision upholding the law invalid was handed down by the supreme court some months ago. It is now again before the court on a motion for rehearing, the case being styled as the town of Muskell vs. B. Edmonds and others.

DEVALERA AN ASSASSIN?

Rebel Leader Charged With Being Member of Collins Murder Party. DUBLIN, Sept. 23.—Eamon de Valera was a member of the irregular detachment which attacked Michael Collins from ambush in County Cork and shot him to death. It was charged today by Sean McDermott, a member of the dail eireann, and an officer in the free state army.

"We know almost every member of that band which was engaged against Collins," said McDermott. "De Valera was present at that killing, but he was not in command."

"There has recently been a peace move from the de Valera side, but the Free Staters have ignored it because de Valera has broken every promise he ever made. His forces are suffering continuous defeats. His men are deserting him. The morale is very low."

The intelligence department of the Free State army has been informed that the irregulars are planning a big Dublin coup. Preparations are being made to meet it.
